T.O.P (The Orange Pulse)

T.O.P (The Orange Pulse), formerly known as Tangerine, marks the return of one of the Philippines' beloved '90s five-member girl groups. Best known for their 1998 hit "Huwag na Huwag," the group captured the hearts of Filipino music fans before taking a long hiatus to pursue successful careers, raise families, and embrace new chapters in life. Today, Arlene "AJ" Salvado, Jenn aka Elaine Tadena-de Jesus, Izah Villafuerte-Galoso, Imee Castañeda, and Rhoda Tajonera reunite with renewed passion and purpose.

The name The Orange Pulse reflects the group's evolution into a more mature artistic identity while preserving the warmth, harmony, and authenticity that made Tangerine unforgettable. Though the name has changed, the soul remains the same. With refreshed music, heartfelt performances, and decades of lived experience guiding their artistry, T.O.P steps forward not to revisit past acclaim but to honor their beginnings and embrace this new chapter with gratitude. For longtime supporters and a new generation of listeners, their journey continues with the same unmistakable heart — now resonating with a deeper, more assured pulse.
